Proposal

Subject

The Artchive
www.artchive.com

Description

The Artchive is site that offers access to a variety of art resources including information about and images from many artists and genres, articles about art theory and criticism, reviews of art cds and links to other resources for information on art. The operation of the site is supported by users who donate funds in order to gain access to the version of the site that does not have the banners ads.

Proposal

Analysis

The site contains a great amount of useful information and visual examples of art from many artists and genres, but it is unorganized and difficult to navigate. The navigation system consists of a jumbled set of icons on the first page, a small and hard to find set of icons and menu on other pages, or is not present at all. The overall design is cluttered, lacks consistency and is outdated.

Solution

The redesigned site will improve the navigation system by making it clearer, more consistent and always easy to find. The site will be given a more cohesive look that is clean and modern.

Creative Brief

Project Overview

The Artchive website is currently difficult to navigate and its cluttered and inconsistent design makes it feel very disorganized. Also, the look of the site is outdated: links are unstyled, the menu for the artists is a long scrolling list, and the site look includes an out of date computer monitor. Eventhough the site is supported by a donation/patron program, this information is not very prominent and is divided between a pop-up and another section of the site. The aim of the redesign is to improve user experience by making the site more organized and easier to navigate.

The redesign includes a better navigation system and a cleaner, more modern design that is consistent throughout the site. The logo will be redesigned to correspond with the new look of the site. The information on the patron program will be organized into a single more prominent location and the sign up for the patron program will be made simpler.

Goals

Short Term Goals

The immediate goal of the redesign is to improve user experience by making the site easier to navigate and the information more organized.

Long Term Goals

The long term goal is to attract more patrons and or donations. With more support the site would be able to add more content and possibly expand.

Creative Brief

Mission Statement

The artchive.com is a collection of 2,000 scans from over 200 different artists as well as articles about art theory and criticism and reviews of commercially available CD-ROM art collections. The main purpose of artchive.com is to provide a free, well-organized and easy to use resource for students, artists and art lovers around the world.

Website Redesign

The Artchive

Robin Long
IMD200 Information Architecture

Website Redesign - The Artchive

Problems Report

- Site lacks a cohesive look – each page/section of the site looks as though it could be a different site
- Opening page is a random-looking collection of icons – difficult to see how to navigate the site
- The look of the site is out dated – there are unstyled links and the logo uses a really old looking monitor

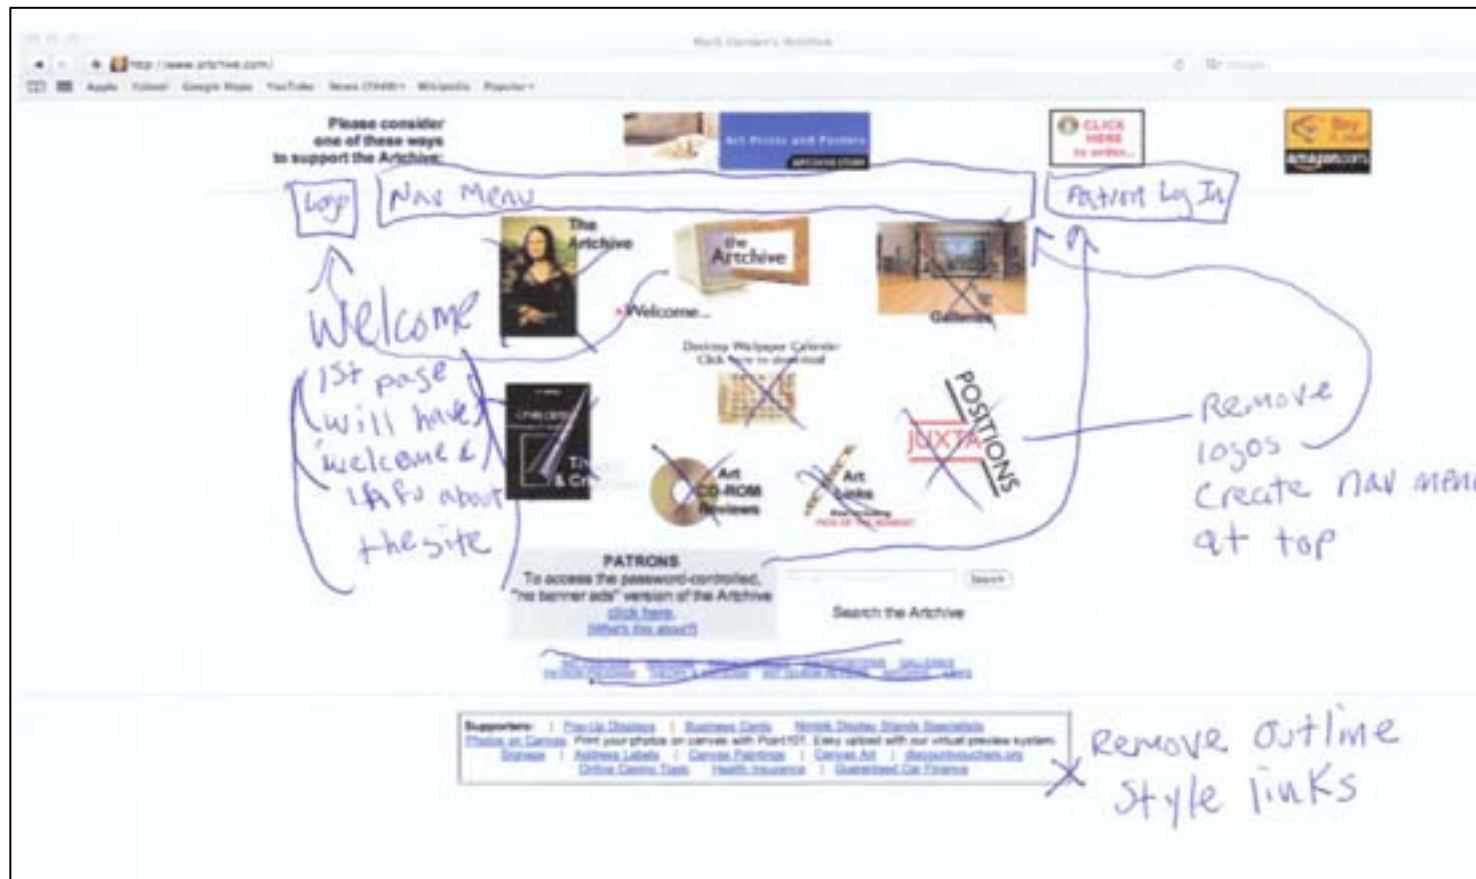

Website Redesign - The Artchive

Solutions Report

- Remove all logos except the main one from the home page and create a navigation menu across the top
- Update look of the site to a cleaner more modern look – style links, pop out or slide menus instead of scrolling frames, etc.
- Give the site a consistent look
- Redesign the logos to be consistent with the new look of the site and also so that even though they denote different sections of the site, they convey that they are part of the same site
